It has already become a tradition to have a baby boom in the Burgas Zoo every spring. Its inhabitants live widely and are well taken care of by their owners, the Dabovi family. Therefore, they reproduce often and without problems.

The Dabovi family announced that this spring they welcomed a lemur, a black mouflon, an ibex and a small ostrich emu. In addition, along the line of exchange with other zoos, they are already showing their visitors a pair of monkeys of the Capuchin breed, a caracal and a flock of mini sheep.
